Due to law changes, Farriers are no longer able to carry or administer sedatives, if the horse needs to be sedated, the owner will need to call their vet. If the owner knows ahead that the horse will need sedatives, please make necessary arrangements before the farrier appointment.

In the event a horse needs to be sedated but was not known ahead of time, the barn call, and any services already performed will be charged, and a new appointment will need to be made when sedatives are available.

The farrier reserves the right to refuse service to any horse for reasons including but not limited to (safety of the horse and those around, health, aggression, and delinquent payment)

The farrier reserves the right to charge up to the full amount of service for late cancellations (less than 24 hour notice), owner or stable manager isn't there, or is more than 15 minutes late, and will be unable to reschedule until bill is payed. Except for reasons of weather.

An owner, or stable manager must be present at all times unless instructed otherwise.

The farrier is not responsible for catching horses, horses should be caught and ready at time of arrival. Time spent waiting for horses to be caught will be charged.

Upon arrival, the farrier will only do what was scheduled to be done, no last minute add on horses or services. 24 hour notice is required to add more horses. The exception is an emergency situation, which will be charged an emergency fee.

Injury – LFF Farrier Service is not liable for any injuries noticed post service, or that pop up later. Knicks and minor cuts are a possibility anytime sharp equipment is used around animals. Our staff evaluate all horses for any signs of injury throughout the service. We will inform you of anything we find.

All fees must be paid in full at completion of service, no credit will be extended. Failure to pay in full upon completion of service will result in an additional $20, and the client will be unable to make further appointments until bill is paid

Failure to pay at completion of service more than 2 times will result in client being required to prepay future services.

We accept Cash, and checks only. Bounced checks will be charged an additional $40
